Course Description (Catalog)

TLMT 313 Supply Chain Management: This course is a study of supply chain management from the consumer back to raw materials. The entire process is studied from the standpoint of the leading theory and practice of cutting edge organizations.

Course Scope

This TLMT 313 Supply Chain Management course focuses on today's global and increasingly competitive economy, companies (both large and small) who need to work smarter, harder, and more efficiently to remain viable and competitive. In the recent past, purchasing, logistics, finance, and shipping used to be considered separate and individual functions. This decentralized, semi integrated approach has recently been viewed as ineffective and inefficient. The current concept of Supply Chain Management involves the effective management and integration of these functions to produce and deliver a quality product to a customer at a competitive cost while realizing a good profit. Synchronizing organizational processes, functions and activities has enabled modern corporations – regardless of size – to reduce costs, increase efficiency, while at the same time maintaining the flexibility to be responsive to their client's ever-changing needs and requirements. Purchased materials and services account for 50-75% of the cost operations in most organizations and, in some cases, 80-90% for both manufacturing and service industries. "Outsourcing" of entire functions such as logistics and procurement of raw materials, parts, sub assemblies, operating supplies, and capital equipment have increased as firms concentrate on core competencies. Therefore, "Materials and Services" provide an enormous potential area of cost savings along with increased quality of service. For example, a five percent (5%) reduction in materials cost can increase ROI by thirty percent (30%)!

Online universities promote the advancement of knowledge through positive and constructive debate – both inside and outside the classroom. Forums on the Internet, however, can occasionally degenerate into needless insults and “flaming.” Such activity and the loss of good manners are not acceptable in a university setting – basic academic rules of good behavior and proper “Netiquette” must persist. Remember that you are in a place for the rewards and excitement of learning which does not include descent to personal attacks or student attempts to stifle the Forum of others.

- Technology Limitations: While you should feel free to explore the full-range of creative composition in your formal papers, keep e-mail layouts simple. The Sakai classroom may not fully support MIME or HTML encoded messages, which means that bold face, italics, underlining, and a variety of color-coding or other visual effects will not translate in your e-mail messages.
- Humor Note: Despite the best of intentions, jokes and especially satire can easily get lost or taken seriously. If you feel the need for humor, you may wish to add “emoticons” to help alert your readers: ;-), :), ☺

Request a Library Guide for your course (<http://apus.libguides.com/index.php>)

The AMU/APU Library Guides provide access to collections of trusted sites on the Open Web and licensed resources on the Deep Web. The following are specially tailored for academic research at APUS:

- Program Portals contain topical and methodological resources to help launch general research in the degree program. To locate, search by department name, or navigate by school.
- Course Lib-Guides narrow the focus to relevant resources for the corresponding course. To locate, search by class code (e.g., SOCI111), or class name.

If a guide you need is not available yet, please email the APUS Library: librarian@apus.edu.

Turnitin.com

Faculty may require assignments be submitted to Turnitin.com. Turnitin.com will analyze a paper and report instances of potential plagiarism for the student to edit before submitting it for a grade. In some cases professors may require students to use Turnitin.com. This is automatically processed through the Assignments area of the course.
